

Herb Hethcote

A coal export facility in Longview is a terrible idea. Coal trains in Washington state create traffic congestion and release carcinogenic coal dust. The international price for coal is low and may go much lower as coal is replaced by natural gas and green sources, so the export facility could go out of business.