Dear Department of Ecology,

Please note that I think this proposed pesticide action is a bad idea for humans and the environment. As a specialist who makes a career in the fate and transport of organic contaminants, this proposed action seems to pose an unacceptably high, and poorly understood, risk of adverse consequences for non-target organisms and humans.

Please lets get past the point where spreading lethal concentrations of toxic compounds throughout our jointly owned environment is considered to b a good idea. There are other ways to address this problem that do not involve the use of toxic chemicals on our aquatic environment. This is a bad idea.

Dr. Edward P. Kolodziej
