

Jennifer Stone

Thank you for your thorough and careful evaluation of the need to designate Puget Sound as a No Discharge Zone. Puget Sound should join 90 other iconic waterways across the United States as a No Discharge Zone.

To date, our region is the only one in the nation that has not designated No Discharge Zones for any waters. Puget Sound, a national treasure, needs this type of protection. Not pouring poop in the sound is a no brainer. I can't believe this law hasn't been in effect 30 years ago and am shocked to find out about these practices.

Please support support Department of Ecology's determination and proposal to establish the Puget Sound No Discharge Zone.

It is our responsibility to protect sensitive marine waters, honoring our cousins who live in the water.

Fortunately, over 97% of boaters already do the right thing they have holding tanks onboard to store sewage (also called blackwater), then pump it out using any one of the 100 designated pumpout facilities that are available throughout the Puget Sound.

The maritime community values Puget Sound and I am confident that the remaining vessels that don't have proper holding tanks onboard will step up to do their part to keep our waters clean.

Please establish the Puget Sound No Discharge Zone.