

Bill Yake

While breaching of selected dams (especially those on the Snake River) is a much better long-term solution, strategically increasing spill and closely monitoring the results is better than nothing. So, I support this effort, but hope that eventually the Snake and Columbia are returned to a substantially more natural state.