

William Meyer

I support the Washington state Department of ecology in requiring water quality conducive for fish survival at the Columbia river dams . The dams are a known source of significant Salmon mortality, and therefore improving water quality standards that would help salmon survival is warranted . As citizens of Washington state we deserve to have healthy fisheries . We also deserve to have a healthy environment. Tribal treaties also need to be met and protecting salmon . When the dams were constructed they did not adequately anticipate these types of environmental impacts and therefore did not mitigate for them . Please help protect water quality and Sam and health in the Columbia and snake river systems for the citizens of Washington, Oregon and the pacific northwest .