Respectfully.

There is little to no cause to implement the water use restrictions and metering idea other than a political reason. It's interesting that DOE doesn't even try to bring a scientific argument into the reasoning. Please stop what your doing and reconsider arbitrary and costly burden that is being considered.

Whatcom county council had a year to get their own plan completed but instead showed little effort , little focus in actually completing something citizens could live with.

The team that brought the initial lawsuit might as well sit on the council as they are the current political force that steers the county.
