I'm a resident of Tacoma north end. I'm a citizen, volunteer board member for Citizens of a Healthy Bay, Executive Director for the South Sound Sports Commission and a big advocate voice in the area of what a great job Tacoma has done on clean up. They made a lot of change and we realize the benefit that has come from that change. We're thankful for that but cleanup is a marathon and is not a sprint and we're not done with that marathon yet. I want to speak specifically on record about what I've seen in this documentation that points to what I believe is about a forty-one percent plan of cleanup of what's here. That seems like an awfully strange number to me, a low number. Speaking of my own life, if I paid 41% of my mortgage, they would repossess 100% of my house. So I would like to see that pressed to a higher standard. Two points we've heard earlier, this plume represents a pretty high levels of toxins, it doesn't represent that the complete picture. So a 41% of a bad plume is probably not enough of the greater. I would like to see far higher.

Thank you.
