It is horrifying to find out what kind of poisonous pollution this company has left in its wake, and how it is endangering the wildlife in Puget Sound, which is such a special place.

As a tax payer, I resent having my tax dollars used to clean up messes and waste left by irresponsible companies that are making millions of dollars. The fact that Oxidental was also involved in Love Canal means they haven't learned anything over the years. This makes their behavior willful, and they should have to clean everything up 100%. If they had total responsibility, you can bet they'd be a lot more careful not to pollute in the first place.

Sincerely,

Carrie Parks
