

JP Kemmick

Fracked gas is not a viable alternative for a carbon reducing fuel. Its full life cycle greenhouse gas emissions are actually far more potent than its backers would admit to. We need to move toward renewables as soon as possible, not lock ourselves into decades more of fossil fuels.