

Tom Haugen

WSDOT built floating bridges for the freeways on the W. side. They could ignore this contamination and just put a floating bridge over the top of it on one side while the remediation is done to the other side. When the first side is finished they can move the floating bridge over onto the remediated side and be done with it.