

John McCorkle

Ecology should reconsider their position (expressed in guidance) regarding the use of silica gel cleanup methodology on groundwater samples given the current scientific understanding regarding the toxicity of polar non-hydrocarbons that are addressed by the cleanup methodology. This position could then be expressed in WAC 173-340-720 (9), similar to the direction regarding the use of filtered samples.