There is no existing guidance for characterization, storage, management, and disposal of investigation derived waste that is generated during MTCA investigations, cleanups, and due diligence projects. I realize that this isn't directly a MTCA issue, but it is a nexus between MTCA and the Dangerous Waste Regulation, which is ineffective at helping generators of this type of waste manage their liabilities. It would be very helpful if these two factions in Ecology worked together to provide effective guidance to generators. I would be happy to be involved in the process if there is a way for people in the industry to contribute. Thanks for your time.
