We are concerned about whether the benefits of this plant outweigh the cost to the environment. Is there a very big market for what the smelter is producing? A lot of solar panels and other materials are produced in other foreign countries, so would this smelter really be worth it to put here? Also, there is a strong sense of community in rural areas, so would this smelter disrupt the community in Newport? Overall, we just want to know if this plant is absolutely necessary in order to keep the economy running or benefit humanity as a whole.
