comments: I am totally against the smelter being built in this area! It is the wrong location.. I realize that Wa. St. is in need of tax revenue, but that is no reason/excuse to build this plant here, which would be extremely detrimental to everyone in this and surrounding areas. Thousands of people would be affected.

There would be NO benefit to the people, only pain and heartache as the smelter pollutants would harm everyone and everything it touches. Water, air, wildlife.

As for the 240 trucks 24/7, the constant engine fumes and noise pollution, traffic stalled would be unbearable. TOXIC ! How would people living on Hwy 41 and close by be able to enter or exit the Hwy? How would we be able to sleep at night? You would be driving thru Idaho which is unfair as everyone I talk to is horrified. We don't want the smelter any where near us..

WE are talking traffic gridlock everywhere.. Currently, we have a steady flow of traffic and we don't want or need more ! With trucks constantly trying to maneuver thru neighborhoods, etc. ridiculous. I would like to know if anything about this project was planned or if the residents were even thought about. Government, "civil servants" I believe take an oath to protect the health and well being of the people. We pay your salaries. It's like a foreign entity is about to take over the community and ruin every thing good and wholesome about it..

The traffic would be intolerable and the infrastructure damaged and in need of repair in short order. Property values would plummet and who would want to visit the area with the stinky pollution and traffic gridlock?

When I was very young I dreaded driving thru Tacoma as the smell/odor was terrible.

I understand it took close to a 100 million to clean that smelter up.

Why wasn't the subject property offered for sale to the public? When was it rezoned and why? I hope the litigation answers these questions as there are too many that haven't been answered....

Gov. Inslee certainly fip-flopped on climate change problems when it comes to this area! It is all a big slap in the face..

Without your health you have nothing !
