

Mary Rawlsky

I live in the Spirit Valley, just north of Spirit Lake. ID. The entire valley north to Oldtown and Newport has the potential to be completely ruined by :

Additional traffic via roadways and rail

Air, noise and water pollution

I have lived here for 25 years and prior to that, areas with large industrial zones have impacted the environment, which have resulted in enormous cleanup projects. That's great should we wish to continue to have our tax dollars supply jobs that are always retroactively correcting something that should never have happened in the first place. Imagine the money that could be used to PRO actively support the rural environment by educating people and small businesses in this area and make it better for those of us here and those wanting to be here for the right reasons.

Please consider the pollution and transportation issues as stated and their long-ranging impacts.