

Talis Abolins

I support the roll out of this carbon tax program. It did not come soon enough. With proper implementation, this may be one of the most successful ways to address climate change, and the Vancouver British Columbia experience is evidence of this. Don't pick winners and losers. Use the power of economics to fairly and efficiently spread the price of climate correction, and internalize the horrendous externalities of carbon use on those who are profiting from it.