

Sally Bartow

Policymakers, please consider that your present decisions potentially impact many generations. Think of the people, the plants, and the animals your decisions will impact. While prioritizing our current climate emergency, plan for many generations from now. As you weigh your decisions, ask yourself, is this the best choice for our planet now and for generations to come?