

Robert Adams

This rule is short sided and ill-advised. Electric vehicles do not work for rural daily drivers particularly in the winter when battery's lose 20 percent of their charge due to the cold. Reintroduce this rule 20 years from now when the technology will be sufficient to support it. Just because California jumps off a cliff, do we need to?