Clearly another effort by the elitist leftists to drive a poorly conceived and even more poorly executed pile of legislation down our throats with NO regards for the hardships it will impose on the fixed income sector or the middle to lower class (which you seem determined to destroy). I live in a rural community along with many other tax payers where electric vehicles are completely useless not to mention ridiculously expensive. The technology is not yet ready for this AND more importantly they use a minerals and processes that are incredibly destructive to our environment. But again, if you had actually put some thought into this you would of course realize these currently come from economic foes of the United States (or any real democracy) and they do not adhere to any eco friendly practices in extracting these base elements needed to produce the very things you are demanding we run out and buy. And what to do with the millions of tons of spent lithium power cells???? well, gladly no one wants to talk about the million ton toxic elephant in the room.... Another one of Jay Inslee's moronic attempts to placate the liberals pulling his strings....
