

Anonymous Anonymous

Making rules on this currently non-existent system is premature because the necessary number of recharging stations has not yet been determined, built, installed or tested. Nor is it known if Washington's electric power sources will be able to support the demand. You are making legally binding real rules to govern an imaginary reality. Suggests you are just doing it to put on a show.