

Mary Nevius

I believe that moving towards green energy is a great goal.

Current battery technology does not allow for the elimination of gas powered vehicles to be a practical solution. In addition, the cost of electric vehicles is more than the average consumer can afford. This will effect the poor the most. As somebody who lives in a rural area on a limited income, this would be a hardship for me and countless others.