

JJ Whorley

Electrical vehicles are too expensive, do not have enough range and/or charging stations and the state does not have the grid power to replace gas with electric - especially if we continue to remove dams that provide electricity.

Making enough electricity would require coal mining for many years to come which is HORRIBLE for the environment. The entire movement/idea is full of hypocrisy and lacks any real science.