

Robert Keel

I oppose any rule eliminating gasoline vehicles. California infrastructure can't even support their current electric demands and you expect us to all go to EVs? This makes absolutely no sense, especially when you factor in the environmental impact of the EVs--from the mining of the batteries, to the toxic disposal problems when those batteries fail. Not to mention the astronomical cost of replacing an EV battery.