

Anonymous Anonymous

You guys are out of your minds. All you're going to do is create an electrical crisis. The grid can't possibly handle the extra load. If electric cars are so good, the market will handle the transition without all the mandates. We are not California!