

Jere Knudtsen

No sensible person is against alternatives to fossil fuels if they perform as well, are available at a reasonable and sustainable cost, don't compromise our national security, health, and way of life, and are executable. EV simple are not ready for prime for a plethora of reason. Rather than EV, time would be spent investigating nuclear power options.