

Anonymous Anonymous

I would prefer this not being ramed down our throats. In the USA there should be Freedom for US to choose when etc. The infrastructure in WA state and for that matter the USA is not in place. It won't be by 2035 either! At minimum make it 2050. This doesn't solve anything for climate change either...you still need to mine the lithium. These cars are way to expensive for the avg american worker to even buy! What's the plan for disposal for all the old cars? No other country on earth will be doing this either! Maybe that's the plan...give our old cars to those countries and make us suffer!? The only person that wants this is Inslee to keep up with Newsome! He needs to be smarter than him rather than try rato keep up with them! The gov incentives aren't enough when they just hike up the costs of these vehicles. It costs iver 20k right now when the batteries go out! Who can afford that? This is just a bad bad policy to play the Enforcer but just like covid...im sure thats what will happen. I'm asking for someone at the Top to be reasonable! You blink and 12 yrs will be here!