

Ryan Cassell

California has been asking their citizens with EVs to refrain from charging their vehicles during certain times of the day to minimize the load on their electric grids. What guarantees are being made by the the state of Washington that our electric grids will be able to handle the increased load that all these new EVs will require?