

Darin Warden

Hello and thank you for reading my comment. This legislation is out of touch with where we are as a middle class, a state, and a country. To ban sales of gasoline vehicles by 2030 cannot realistically force all the pieces into place needed for such a change. We don't have the electric grid for it and Inslee is shutting down our grid not expanding it in order to force people to accept green energy. We don't know the depth of lithium supply and yes, it is detrimental to the environment despite what experts say. To be forced to adopt technology that is based on power derived from unsustainable mining that is killing or endangering multiple species including humans is not in the interest of the people which makes this legislation in itself, a handout to industry, lobbyists, and Jay Inslee's sick agenda for the people whose rights he's supposed to protect and nothing else. We did not ask for this. Repeal it, cancel it, burn the originals. Thank you.