Why should we follow California's radical policies that are forced on the people causing a mass exodus to other states where they can provide for their families I believe Washington should take a more practical approach Let the private sector develop and perfect this new technology so it will not do more harm to the planet than we are currently and this will also make it possible to continue to develop better use of fossil fuels and work on upgrading our hydro power while we wait for EV's to become more practical and less damaging to our world.
