

Don Adsitt

You cannot legislate the climate. The earth goes through natural cycles. The earth emits thousands of tons of pollutants every day into the atmosphere, volcanoes, forest fires, undersea methane vents, landfills etc.

The grid must be Zero emissions and be able to handle millions and millions of vehicles outside of household and industrial use for your plan to have any effect. Already the Grid is maxed, California saying this summer to shut off AC's and dont charge your car. You cant add millions of charging to a tiny grid that also is run mostly from fossil fuels. Further, China controls most of the worlds supply of lithium and rare metals. You should focus on recycling and getting rid of plastics instead. You people are brain dead.