

mary kidd

It takes oil to make electricity. the kids in Africa are exploited for making the batteries in the Congo they make maybe a dollar a day this is slave labor. we don't have the infrastructure to charge all of these vehicles the batteries are dangerous. Look at California they can't charge their vehicles during the day. They are too expensive for the average person to buy. Is the mileage tracked and what is the insurance cost of using this type of vehicle? Are they safe in accidents? Not a wise !!! too many bad results for environment and kids used for slave labor