

Doug Kobilan

Electric vehicles are harder on the environment than gas powered vehicles. Mining the materials needed for batteries and battery disposal will cause more harm to the environment. Add to this the unreliability of electric cars, makes them a poor choice to mandate state wide in hopes of helping the environment.