

Jennifer Engebo

Currently lawmakers are not taking in to consideration all the challenges that come with electric vehicles. As California is finding with rolling blackouts, you need the infrastructure in place to make this a possibility. Currently these vehicles from start to finish have a higher emissions than a diesel truck. Although they are clean while they run, when the batteries are done they are worse for the environment than a gas powered vehicle. Please do the research. Not everyone wants an electric vehicle. It is not logical for those who would like to have a camper and boat. It does not allow for long distance traveling due to lack of charging stations and length of time it would take to charge the vehicle. Not all states are putting this into affect. Our society is so mobile. Please educate yourselves on both sides of the issue. Not just one!