

Janine Burkhardt

I would like to voice my opposition to banning gas powered vehicles and state that it is a reckless, foolish step to take when infrastructure is not in place to help people afford vehicles powered by electricity and the necessary electric to power said vehicles. Multiple ways of powering vehicles needs to stay in place for another 30 years so that technology can catch up with efficiency. You are not listening to the people who are the power in the state and God will recompense and watches every move you make. Adhere to a conscience and do as the people request. That is your job and just see if God won't bless good actions.