As a senior citizen with very limited income I am forced by inflation and technology into poverty that I would never thought possible before I retired. Now the government want's me (by force) to exit my fossil fuel vehicle to convert to electric vehicles. Simply put I can't afford to switch even if I wanted to. So what do the powers think - tough luck - once again they don't dance with the person who brought them to the dance. Why not they can AFFORD to spend thousands on new technology.
