You guys must think we are all rich. Do you really believe EVs are better for the environment? Do you know anything about lithium which mainly comes from China? What about disposal of lithium batteries? Rich people will not be in a bind because of your edict, what you are doing is going to hurt poor and lower middle class people. You probably don't actually care about that. Do you know those fancy bird killing windmills are made in China? How about the solar panels, do you know where those are made? China. What about disposal? All the while you are talking about tearing down the dams. Where will all this electricity come from? And lets not forget also that you'all gifted our advanced battery technology to the communist Chinese after it was developed here in Washington using our American tax dollars.
