Thank you for the opportunity to comment in support of the Department of Ecology (Ecology) adopting Advanced Clean Cars II (ACCI), the Heavy-Duty Omnibus Low NOx rule, and the fleet reporting requirement this year in Washington. I could list all the reasons why Ecology should do this, but you already know them. What this really boils down to is this: Twenty years from now (or even ten years from now), when our kids and grandkids ask us why we didn't do more to combat climate change, we can say we did everything we could to protect their future, or we can say we thought it was best to let the oil industry continue to make billions of dollars while destroying our planet. This is one of those moments when we, as a society, have an unprecedented opportunity to use brains and compassion instead of greed and politics upon which to base our decisions.
