ACC II is a good effort at helping our state make this transition. When I was looking for my current car, my choices were SO few: either no range -- less than 100 miles, or inaccessible in price. My plug-in hybrid that I finally found at a price point I could manage will be ten years old next year, and I've been present for most of the 'growing pains' in electric car transition. Transforming infrastructure is going to take time, space, and a lot of deliberation, education, community processing, and we really need to get started on a good plan.
