Please do not force electric vehicles and let them be a choice. The process to make the batteries for an electric car is not healthy for the earth. Shortages of electricity can and is a real thing, look at California. One should always be allowed to have a back up plan. Demanding electric cars is limiting ones right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.

Until our energy is stable this is a horrible idea. Please copy California one example of the lunacy is with their rolling blackouts and telling people do not charge their electric cars while saying this will be the only option.
