

Rod Gray

Any such mandate is government overreach defined and short-sighted. EV vehicles create their own environmental issues - battery disposal. Additionally, the electrical grid is not capable of sustaining such a load. Can EV's be an option? Sure. However, any such transition needs to occur organically and not via mandate.