

Patrick LeBrun

I am not against clean burning cars. The progress achieved in the last 30 years has been amazing without or in spite of government requirements.

I think we are progressing just fine without more feel good mandates pushed by government fat cats that think that we need more socialist big ideas from other states. After all we wouldn't want our state politicians to be held accountable for this.