

Frederick Michael Brady

As usual, Jay Inslee is wrong and out of touch with reality. I won't get started on the long list of his wrong decisions, only to say that most of them raise taxes and make Washington a less safe place to live. And then there's his proposal to ban the sale of gasoline powered cars by 2035. Another bad idea from a bad governor. It is a fact that today's gasoline powered cars are much cleaner than gasoline powered cars of the past. And cleaner than electric powered cars given the power manufactured by power plants that it takes to charge electric cars and the manufacturing of batteries for openers. Then there's lack of reliability for electric cars, running out of charge, especially electric trucks. Okay, I will get to the point. Any politician who insists on mandating people to buy electric vehicles which most people don't want can count on me and the majority of other voters voting them out of office. It's long overdue that Jay Inslee should be voted out of office.
