

Alma Schneider

I just want to voice, as strongly as possible, my opposition to ANY enforcement at any level on any date, (beginning as early as 2026), mandating anything to do with the purchase of electric vehicles. It takes away choice, and it will cost billions. Electricity is finite! Notice the recent “brown out” in California when charging electric vehicles was not allowed. It creates an impossible situation for most people. THE COST WILL BE PROHIBITIVE!! If the goal is to force use of public transportation, that won’t work either. If you have no vehicle, because you can’t afford one, to get to a bus, train etc., then you can’t go to work, to visit family, to go out for fun, out to eat, etc., etc. This just the tip of the iceberg as to why forcing the use of these types of vehicles is insane! The collateral damage can’t begin to be calculated!!!