

Rob Melsen

I'm against the rules in chapter 173-423 WAC & 173-400 WAC Because it's based on human caused climate change, which is false and based on one sided studies.

Our climate is always changing, look at the multiple ice ages in the past, there was over a mile of ice covering north America in times and there where periods that all ice was gone, 200 feet higher sea levels. ( reference a 2010 documentary on the History channel, where multiple scientist discusses their findings in caves and drilling core samples from all over north America and its surrounding oceans floors)

Also why latest studies found that there's a heatwave happing on the planet Jupiter, caused by sun bursts by our sun, the average temperature on Mars is also raising. (reference NASA/Hubble)

Then our infrastructure & power grid is not capable to support all these vehicles with the plan that we only can heat & cool all our homes with electricity, to change all this would be very expensive.

The results of the "New green deal" is going to be disastrous to the world, China will be globally energy dominant, with more wars going to happen and where the poorest populations going to suffer the most with this energy shift.

It's much better to invest in research and development of a different energy source for as we will one day eventually run out of fossil fuels.