

Arthur Berkell

Despite the "feel good" nature of electric vehicles, they are an environmental disaster. And despite the fact that they don't use fossil fuels per se, the inescapable fact is that fossil fuels create the electricity on which electric vehicles run. Additionally they depend on lithium which is from China. They depend on outrageously expensive batteries which once depleted are too expensive to replace. All of this is factual and widely known. To ignore these facts to create feel-good legislation is foolish, anti-American, and bordering on the criminal.