

Richard Ford

EVs have shown themselves to be unreliable and expensive and adopting asinine laws and regulations won't change that. The ability to freely move about cannot be curtailed in this manner and adoption of these draconian measures will prohibit the free functioning of our commerce and destroy our way of life. This is by no means overstated or hysterical. This nonsense has to be overruled.