I am extremely opposed to adopting the California Clean vehicle program for so many reasons. It is completely unrealistic and unfair -- it is way too expensive for those of us who can not afford an electric vehicle. Electricity is becoming expensive and there is not enough to heat our houses and cook our food as it is. Putting in recharging stations all over the state will be way too expensive -- especially in areas that are not as populated & far from one town to another. We have many more ways to use our few dollars - like feeding & housing the homeless people. This is not something the government should be involved in. Also, requiring companies to report their fleets is appalling & intrusive. This sounds like a very bad socialistic proposal.
