I greatly appreciate the work that is being done to investigate the injustice in air pollution in Washington. However, I do think it prudent to ensure data sources are as up to date as possible and complete as possible when basing such important policy decisions off of it. For example, EJ Screen does not always have complete data or the most updated data, which worries me when air pollution is such a fine-scale, ever-changing thing. I hope that data collection is thorough and takes advantage of the most modern sources, including daily monitoring programs.
