

Patricia Harris

The Department of Ecology in its Improving Air Quality in Overburdened Communities Initiative needs to reconsider its method of defining overburden communities. The currently proposed method is not inclusive enough and seems to lack evidence for its selections. It should be altered to be more inclusive, including more communities on the initial list. It should also include a way for those communities that may have been missed to be considered as overburdened.