

Millie Magner

The Dept of Ecology must address the environmental inequities in determining what populations and regions are overly burdened by poor air quality. We know and have data from Washington Department of Health's "Washington Environmental Health Disparities Map.

DOE must monitor air quality with an environmental justice lens. The HEAL Act focus is the tool that must be used to capture vulnerabilities.

Do not leave communities behind that have historically been ignored.